DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Applicant's election with traverse of the method of processing a product formed by a punch press in the reply filed on May 14, 2007 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground(s) that there is no different technical feature among the groups. This is not found persuasive because the apparatus claims do not require leaving a joint and separating the joint and the method steps cannot be performed by the apparatus, therefore the inventions are not linked to form a single inventive concept.

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

1. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Cutshall et al (US 2003/0115926). Cutshall et al discloses a method for manufacturing stamped extruded parts by a punch press comprising the steps of leaving a micro joint connecting a work piece to a raw material when forming slits in the work piece along an outer shape of the raw material, forming a product by positioning a bending process portion of the raw material on a lower metal mold and bending the bending process portion downward on the basis of cooperation of an upper metal mold (84) and the lower metal mold (86) [See FIG 5] and dropping the product by separating the connection between the product and work piece by the micro joint [See paragraph 0033].
